From whatever cause, your article of to-day shows that you, at least, have entirely misapprehended the gist of the whole matter, for, in sayto that Meeting the existence of the Colonial Taxpurpose for which the Meeting was convened. The purpose of the Meeting was to afford the Inhabitants of the Colony an opportunity of doclaring that they consider the presence of Troops here to be unnecessary for any purely Colonial ob-Ene dismissing the subject of our local re- jest, and this purpose was attained by the unanipose of purchasing a site in the Colony of venue, we propose making a few remarks on mous adoption of the first Resolution. If this Government (und, if it has not, the axiom of von We will give to-morrow. populi vor Dei finust cease to form a part Comparing the Estimates of 1860, with of the governmental creed) the authorities in purchase of the Docks now owned and carried on those of 1864, we find the following variances. Without enlarging on the advice usually given to dwellers in glass bouses, I proceed emphatically to deny your charge of disingenuousness, I said ut the Meeting that I believed the demand to be unconstitutional, and, when the necessity arose, I proved that I was right. The necessity was produced by your own assertions that the question as to Troops being required in Hongkong was "heside the point" that startling doctrine, which no one, within my knowledge, has perviously monted, throw upon the promoters of the undertaking the onus of demonstrating that the mother Country has no right to claim what Her Mujesty's Government may choose to call Surplus Revenue except as a return for the performance of indispensable services. This had previously been assumed as a postulate in our argument; but on the soundness of the postulate the value of the arguments necessarily depends. You alone disputed the latter, and then, for the first time, it became a duty to substantiate the former. No more was it "puorile and absurd" to shew cause why the Colory should be exempted from further taxation. The peremptory tone that has been assumed by Her Majesty's Government son for adducing every argument that could be brought to bear against their measures. The lumpaid services which the Colony renders to Imperial interests, and the enormous expenses under which both the native population and many foreigners of limited income group, are weighty considerations and should make Her Majesty's
